Congratulations!

You are now the owner of a Colt firearm. The Colt name on handguns and long guns has meant quality and reliability to American sportsmen since 1836. The firearm you have purchased was built to exacting quality control standards, of the most suitable materials available, and with traditional Colt craftsmanship. We hope you will enjoy many years of shooting pleasure with your new Colt.

Read the instruction manual carefully and completely to ensure safe operation. Should you now, or at any time in the future, have a question concerning your Colt handgun, please write the Customer Service Department in Hartford, Connecticut.

If your gun should need service, as outlined in the back of our instruction manual, please forward your gun to one of the Colt Authorized Repair Service Stations shown on the listing enclosed with your gun. (If this list has been lost or destroyed, a new one may be obtained by contacting the factory.)

This network of Repair Service Stations has been established for your convenience and to enable us to return your gun to you in the shortest possible time. If, for some reason, your gun requires a factory repair, shipping charges from the Repair Service Station to Colt will be at Colt's expense.

Sending your gun directly to the factory without first going to a Colt Authorized Repair Service Station will only cause unnecessary delay.

Our objective, here at Colt, is to earn your confidence and satisfaction with a quality product and the kind of service you have come to expect when purchasing a Colt product. You have our assurance that we are firmly committed to that end and are making an earnest effort at every level to achieve it.

In closing, we would like to express our thanks for your choosing Colt and if we, here at the factory, can be of service, please do not hesitate to contact us.

Sincerely,

C. E. Warner
President
